What public records show

The April 29, 2022 comment letter in the City of Kirkland Notice of Decision for Finn Hill 8 Short Plat (File No. SUB22-00036, 8230 NE 117th Street) describes Overlook at Finn Hill as a four-house HOA at 8210, 8216, 8220, and 8226 NE 117th Street, immediately west of that parcel.

Kirkland Hearing Examiner minutes for June 14, 2023 list the Overlook at Finn Hill HOA as an appellant on the same short plat. A sworn member described it as a four-home HOA bordering the site.

Public compilations of Washington Secretary of State filings list UBI 603234404, a Washington nonprofit formed August 30, 2012, with a principal office at 8220 NE 117th Street, Kirkland. Confirm the live record at <https://ccfs.sos.wa.gov/> before relying on status or officers.

Those records do not publish fence height, color, material, or setback rules, and no architectural application form was found.

Before you build

1. Ask the association's architectural review committee, or the board if that is who reviews exterior work, what the current process is. Do not start from a verbal comment.
2. City of Kirkland review is separate. Fences 6 feet or less generally do not need a building permit, but zoning still applies. The permit exemption does not cover flood, wetland, steep slope, shoreline, or other critical areas. A fence over 6 feet needs a building permit. Planning: 425-587-3600.
3. Staff notes for SUB22-00036 describe NE 117th Street as a neighborhood access street. On a neighborhood access or collector street, the city's Fence Requirements handout limits a front-yard fence to 3.5 feet. Side and rear fences in required yards are limited to 6 feet. A fence and retaining wall within 5 feet of each other in a required yard are limited to 6 feet combined unless Planning approves a modification.
4. Bring a sketch: property lines, fence location, height of each run, material, gates, and any wall near the fence.

Styles

Cedar privacy, picture-frame cedar, and hogwire in a cedar frame are styles that often fit Eastside HOA reviews in general. Overlook at Finn Hill has not published an approved product list. Submit the material you want and wait for the association's answer.
